SOFTWARE DEVELOPMENT AN INDUSTRY OF THE FUTURE

The fast moving industry is getting right to its peak. At a glance, the software industry is a developing industry, where almost 75% of the work in the future is going to depend wholly on technology. Few decades ago, the internet was just a simple substitute for communication and research.

But now, it has taken over the world and the Lives of people making operations more convenient and efficient. Most things are digitalized now. The world is emerging alongside its development in technology. Research shows that in the future technology is going to grow more roots in software development, making almost all operations digitalized. Old job positions are going to be redundant and new job positions are emerging to suit the changing technological culture.

According to the book 'Conjoint Measurement' by Gian Luca, "The rate of technological progress in the IT industry is extremely rapid: this structural factor, combined with the Low Level of entry barriers, Leads to intense competition within the sector." However, we have identified that the performance factor that will give us the sustainable competitive advantage is, the generation of innovative ideas and execution of those ideas on time.

ZOOZ.LK sees this development as an opportunity to grow in the market Like all similar companies do. But what we are doing and going to do that would make us stand out from the rest of the companies is that we are Looking at the growth of the industry. We are critically analyzing people's demand and the market's supply to identify the untouched parts of the market. What we envision, we will create.

ZOOZ.LK, ADOPTING THE INDUSTRY OF THE FUTURE.
